

TELL OUR POLITICIANS: SUPPORT OIL & GAS WORKERS!

In the last 10 years, the North Sea has lost over 31,000 jobs from decommissioning of oil and gas. TotalEnergy are about to shut down the Gryphon A, a floating production site in the North Sea which should employ 160 skilled workers. This will lead to a 2% fall in the UK's domestic oil and gas supply and about £150 million less in tax receipts by the end of 2027.

We know the oil and gas industry will change as we move to renewables. That change must put workers and communities that rely on their wages at its heart. Energy is the industrial backbone of the Scottish economy. We cannot allow these workers to become the miners of their generation.

We're calling on the Minister for Energy, Michael Shanks, to intervene—especially where jobs are immediately under threat. We need all our politicians to stand up and protect workers.

The Gryphon A was the North Sea's first purpose-built FPSO.

It takes just a couple of minutes to contact Energy Minister Michael Shanks and ask him to save the Gryphon.

MPs and MSPs: Fight to save jobs!

Join Unite and call for a real Workers' Transition in the North Sea.

DEAR MINISTER FOR ENERGY,

We call on you to:

- Immediately, you must instruct the NSTA to uphold existing UK Petroleum law and work with the relevant operators to get the Gryphon A working again. Undermining UK energy security by allowing decommissioning to take place while economically viable licences remain in place and oil jobs are on the line is unacceptable.
- Condemn the erosion of terms and conditions through growing precarity offshore. This is not how to manage the North Sea transition.
- Immediately develop and implement a plan for a Workers' Transition. Unite has a viable plan. Any Workers' Transition Plan must include the full protection of North Sea Jobs, Pay and Conditions.

North Sea workers need to see 100% of Scottish politicians fighting their corner
